An Extremely Heartfelt and Important Message from Dr. Joe Rubino

Thank you for taking action today and for taking responsibility for creating the life of your dreams. I'm so pleased to be supporting you in this invaluable work.

The Formula I'm giving to you is going to help you raise the most underrated ingredient for lasting happiness and success in your life. I'm going to reveal this ingredient to you in just a moment, but first I want to provide a little bit of background...

If you're like most people, you will likely feel inclined to devalue the importance of this essential ingredient and I don't want you to make that horrible mistake and miss out on the opportunity to live your life purpose. I don't want you to miss the chance to know that every day holds for you joyful new possibilities that await your discovery. You see, I have impacted the lives of more than 2 million people through my books and I've personally coached more than 1000 people over the past 21 years to live their best lives and there has been one glaring issue that comes up again and again.

In fact, this issue comes up for a full 85% of the people with whom I work.

In order for them, and for you, to effortlessly succeed in all areas of your life, you need to drastically elevate one simple thing:

Your self-esteem.

Now I know there may be parts of you responding with comments like...

"I don't need to elevate my self-esteem. In fact, people tell me I have an over developed ego as it is. I don't want to make it worse!"

or

"How is improving my self-esteem going to do anything to help me with my money problems?"

or

"I don't have a self-esteem problem, the problem is all the men who are available are jerks and the good ones are already taken"

If you are having thoughts like these, or similar ones, then I have a few questions for you...

- Do you want to be able to attract greater abundance in your life so you can have the peace of mind that comes from being debt-free and having a safe cushion for hard times in addition to a fully funded retirement plan for your golden years?
- Do you long for ease in developing warm, intimate loving relationships?
- Does it seem almost impossible to imagine that you'll never again have to deal with the fear of failure, or the fear that your inadequacies will be discovered and you'll lose the respect and friendship of others?
- Do you wish you could rid yourself of worry about what the future holds for you?
- Would you feel liberated if you possessed the exciting ability to create your ideal life deliberately?

These are the sorts of wonderful benefits that await you if you give this Formula an honest try. Even though you may think you won't benefit from a much greater sense of self-confidence, I assure you that you will.

Your dream life awaits...
if you'll do the work and follow this Formula to bring it into being.

~ Joe Rubino

"I thought that I had plenty of self-esteem, but you showed me how I was living a lie in so many areas of my life.

Your material sounded so good that I doubted you could deliver what you promised. It has and more. This course is amazing. The down to earth principles you share are life transforming. I thought that I had plenty of self-esteem, but you showed me how I was living a lie in so many areas of my life. Thanks to this course, I have found my authentic self."

How to Use this Workbook

This workbook was created to accompany The Lasting Happiness and Success Formula by Dr. Joe Rubino. Print out this workbook so that you can record your responses to the exercises presented. As you read through each chapter in The Lasting Happiness and Success Formula, go to the corresponding chapter in this workbook. Look upon each question and exercise offered as a way to transfer your innermost, often times hidden thoughts and feelings to paper. Answer each question to the best of your ability. Do not worry if you have a challenge answering any particular one. You will have ample opportunity to revisit each chapters' questions as you make progress through the three stages of the book: completing the past, assessing the present, and designing the future.

Once you have recorded your answers to the workbook exercises, go on to read the next chapter in The Lasting Happiness and Success Formula. Once you have read through the entire book and completed all of the exercises offered in the workbook, feel free to go back and start the process over again from the beginning. As you complete your past, new possibilities will reveal themselves to you. As you grow and transform and restore your self-esteem, your assessment of your present state will transform too. The same is true of your future; as a dynamic living creation that you will construct moment by moment in choice, you have the right and the ability to change how you perceive that it will unfold at will. After all, you are the designer and architect of your future and have the power to create any vision for an inspirational and compelling future that moves you.

I invite you to leave the past behind. It's time to realize your true magnificence and begin the process of living deliberately, manifesting what will show up in your world in choice and in alignment with your values. Live boldly and with passion. Never forget the fact that you are truly magnificent.

Yours in magnificence and soaring self-esteem,

Joe Rubino

Complete Your Past

The Essence of Self-Esteem

Challenge: Decide now to take on the personal development exercises outlined in this book. You have the ability to reinvent yourself, elevate your self-esteem and lead a fulfilling life. It all starts now with your decision to do so. Do not simply read this book from a passive perspective, like watching television. Instead, adopt an intention to apply the principles discussed and perform the exercises suggested with the knowledge that they will transform your life and restore your self-esteem.

1. On a scale from 1 to 10, rate your self-esteem level.

2. What was the first experience you can recall where you began to question your self-worth? Describe what happened in as much detail as possible.

3. What did you interpret about yourself from this event?

4. What did you make up about others?

5. How does your diminished self-image cause you to suffer needlessly?

The Paradigm of Perfection

- 1. In what ways do you fail to live up to the paradigm of perfection?

- 2. How has your perceived lack of perfection limited your success and happiness?

The Origins of Self-Doubt

- 1. In what ways do you consider yourself not good enough, less than perfect or not worthy of love and abundance?

- 2. Make a list of what you consider to be your weaknesses.

3. Make a list of your strengths.

4. Decide now to further develop your strengths and seek excellence instead of perfection, realizing that perfection is unattainable. In detail, list how will you do so?

Transform Your Self-talk from Negative to Positive

- 1. Get to know your negative self-talker. Is the voice you hear that of a male or female? Does this voice remind you of anyone in particular?

- 2. For the next week, as you go about your day, notice each time this voice puts you down, makes you wrong and keeps you small. Record each negative thought you have about yourself.

- 3. Clearly differentiate this negative voice from the voice of your trusted intuition. Note how each cynical thought serves some purpose from your self-talker's perspective. Perhaps it makes you right about something, allows you to dominate others or protects you from potential harm or letdown. Maybe it has you driven to succeed, has you berate yourself with guilt or pity or has you avoid seizing responsibility for your magnificence. Half the battle in silencing the negative voice is to recognize when he/she is speaking to you and realize that this counsel is nonsense. Decide now to recognize and instantly dismiss this misguided voice whenever you hear it. Record your insights below.

Separate Facts from Interpretations

- 1. Identify your most common automatic listening styles.
How do these negatively affect your self-esteem?

- 2. What new empowered listening styles will you generate to support your relationships and happiness and boost your self-image?

- 3. Reflect upon a recent upset you experienced. Rigorously distinguish between the facts of exactly what was said or what happened from the meanings you manufactured about the facts.

[illegible]

- #### 4. How do your misinterpretations diminish your self-esteem?

Moods

1. Reflect upon a few recent upsets. Identify your most prevalent mood. It will be some form of anger, fear or sadness. What is the best description of your most common mood?

2. In each instance, distinguish the facts of what was said or done from any interpretations you created that generated your mood.

3. Create a new and empowering interpretation about what was said or done in each instance that will be result in your being mood-free.

4. In the next 24 hour period, count the number of times you recognize your predominant mood surfacing.

5. How did your mood affect those around you?
What undesirable consequences did it activate in others?

1. In the next 7 days, make note of every upsetting situation in your life. List each one here.

This image shows a blank sheet of white paper with horizontal ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and extend across the width of the page. There are no margins, text, or other markings on the paper.

- [illegible]

- 3. What was your predominant mood in each of the above episodes?

- 4. Describe the flavor of anger. Did your anger rapidly transform into fear or sadness? Describe your mood in detail.

- 5. Become aware of just how your mood diminishes the quality of your life and the level of joy you experience every time you choose to become upset. Record your observations.

Manage Your Moods to Enhance Self-Esteem

1. In the moment when you recognize the emotions of anger, sadness, or fear, ask yourself the following questions:
 - A. What happened? What was said or done?
 - B. What are the exact facts pertaining to the situation?
 - C. What meaning have I given to what was said or done, causing me to feel angry, sad or afraid?
 - D. If I put myself in the other person's world and was willing to give them the benefit of the doubt, what empathetic, mood-free explanation could I come up with to explain their actions?
 - E. Do I realize that their actions are not personal, even though they might appear to be on the surface? What was said or done is about the other person, not me. Record your insights.

- This image shows a single sheet of white paper with horizontal blue or grey ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. There are approximately 20 lines visible. The paper has a slight shadow on the right side, suggesting it's resting on a surface. There is no handwriting or other markings on the paper.

- 3. In each moment of upset, put yourself in the other person's world and describe the situation from their perspective.

[illegible]

- #### 4. How does doing so support your self-esteem?

[illegible]

Why We Keep Our Moods in Place

1. What are some of the major reasons for keeping your mood in place?

2. What contrary benefits do your moods provide you?

3. How will you break the destructive pattern of reacting to situations that trigger your mood?

The Costs of Not Reclaiming Our Self-Esteem

- 1. What are the costs for you of not reclaiming your self-esteem?

- 2. In the areas of your health, relationships, vitality, happiness and ability to contribute to others, describe how you sacrifice each area by keeping in place your current interpretations that no longer support you.

- 3. What is the greatest cost to your continued maintenance of a low self-image?

Survival Formulas

1. Describe some ways you have developed to protect yourself from harm and survive in a harsh world.

2. Do you typically take an aggressive or a passive role to protect yourself from harm? How so?

3. Do you tend to dominate others or survive by allowing others to dominate you? How?

Case Studies

1. Write your own case study by following the examples in The Self-Esteem Book, Chapter 12.

A. Recall the earliest traumatic experience you can recall that influenced your own self-image.

B. What interpretation did you create about yourself as a result of this event?

C. What interpretation did you create about people from this episode?

D. What is your predominant mood?

E. What is your survival formula?

Reinterpret Your Past

- 1. Let's recap and put a positive, empowering spin on your life's history! Recall the earliest traumatic experience you can recall that influenced your own self-image. Describe the incident. What happened?

- 2. Separate the facts from what you felt and describe only the facts.

3. What was and is your predominant mood?
(Some variation of anger, sadness or fear)

This image shows a blank sheet of white paper with horizontal ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and extend across the width of the page. There are no margins, text, or other markings on the paper.

4. What did you make up about yourself?

5. What did you make up about other people?

6. What survival formula have you adopted to protect yourself from harm?

7. What negative interpretations have affected your self-esteem adversely?

And most importantly...

8. What new and empowering interpretations can you create about what happened?

9. In place of making up something negative about yourself with respect to this incident, acknowledge yourself for some accomplishment that resulted from it (no matter how small or insignificant you might consider it to be.)

10. Repeat the exercise with respect to any other traumatic incidents you can recall. Notice any similarities in what you negatively interpreted about yourself or others. Reinterpret each incident to enhance your self-esteem. You will have succeeded in reframing each incident when you can reflect upon what happened without anger, sadness or fear and emerge from recalling the incident with a newfound self-respect.

Manage Your Interpretations Moment By Moment

- 1. For the next 30 days, pay close attention to all of your interactions with others. Record each time you notice your predominant mood surfacing.

- 2. Record each cynical, negative reaction you have to what another person says or does.

- 3. Each time, stop yourself and replace the negative thought you had with a positive, empowering one.

- 4. Note how doing so impacts how you see yourself in each case.

Complete Your Past

- 1. Make a list of all of the people you are not on the greatest of terms with. Are you willing to complete with each one?

- 2. Commit to doing whatever is appropriate to achieve completion over the next 30 days with each person on the list above. Detail your plan of action in each case.

This image shows a single sheet of white paper with horizontal blue or grey ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. There are approximately 20 lines visible. The paper has a slight shadow on its right side, suggesting it's resting on a surface.

- 3. Are there any individuals you are unwilling to complete with? What is this costing you not to do so? Know that you need not resume contact with any unhealthy or dangerous individuals. How will you complete with these people?

This image shows a blank sheet of white paper with horizontal ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. There are no margins, text, or other markings on the paper.

The Power of Forgiveness

This image shows a single sheet of white paper with horizontal blue or grey ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. There are approximately 20 lines visible. The paper has a slight shadow on its right side, suggesting it's resting on a surface.

2. In what ways have you not forgiven others?

3. Create a plan to clean up any misspoken words, acknowledge mistakes and apologize for any errors you may have made. For those deceased or those you cannot or choose not to achieve completion with in person, write a letter expressing your thoughts, emotions and forgiveness. Mailing the letter is optional.

The Importance of Gratitude in Sourcing Self-Esteem

Decide to Be Grateful

- 1. Make a list of all the reasons you have to be grateful.

- 2. Daily, decide to contribute to someone who might benefit from your support. For the next 30 days, detail at least one person each day to whom you have contributed.

- 3. Before bed each night, record those blessings for which you have decided to be grateful.

- 4. Acknowledge yourself for your contribution to another today.

Assess Your Present

Do a Values Inventory

1. What are your most important values?

2. Which of your key values do you feel you cannot happily live without?

3. Which are not being fully honored?

4. How does this affect your vitality and self-image?

5. What will you put into place within the next 30 days to begin to honor these essential components that nourish your spirit?

6. Name three people you will ask to support you in honoring these values.

7. What specific actions will you immediately take toward this goal?

8. What obligatory values did you grow up with?

9. Which ones are still in place today? Where do you feel guilty or torn between what you should do and what you want to do?

10. How do these forced values erode your self-esteem?

11. Create an empowering interpretation to explain why others may have pushed each of these values upon you.

12. Which obligatory values will you discard, as no longer serving your happiness and the person you have decided to be?

13. Which ones support your self-image and serve you to keep in place?

- 14. Create a new interpretation to replace any previous ones that had you labeled as bad or wrong if you failed to comply with these values. Remind yourself of this new interpretation each time you judge yourself harshly for violating this obligatory value.

- 15. What do you need to put into place to live in choice and restore your self-esteem? By when will you take these actions?

Now that you have taken your personal inventory, create a preliminary list of all items you will decide to work upon. Make note of those items that can be specifically addressed by detailed actions.

Prioritize your list so you can set specific deadlines for addressing each as you craft your plan of action. Separate what is really so from the meanings you have attributed to each quality that cause your self-esteem to plummet. How does each area support your increased self-esteem?

[illegible]

Assess Your Strengths and Weaknesses

1. Make a list of your strengths and gifts.

- 2. Make a list of at least 5 qualities that you will focus upon to support your esteem, happiness, and personal effectiveness with others. How will each quality support your excellence?

Reprogram Your Subconscious Mind

It's time to declare who you are from this day forward, just because you say so. By doing so, you will leave all disempowering interpretations behind as you reinvent yourself with love, passion, and personal power.

1. List the qualities you will be known for from now on.

2. Write out an empowering affirmation for each one.

- 3. Take a few minutes at least three times a day to read and focus upon the healing energy of these affirmations. Read your new affirmations into a tape recorder. Play back your tape several times daily while closing your eyes and focusing on the feeling you get when you are these traits. Record your insights each day for the next 30 days.

Create a Structure to Develop Those Qualities
You Identify as Missing

- 1. From the list of qualities you developed in the previous exercise, select the top five missing qualities that, if strengthened and developed, would contribute most to your self-esteem. What are these qualities?

- 2. Take some specific daily action that will help develop each trait. List these actions below.

[illegible]

- 4. Keep a daily journal describing what worked that day to develop each characteristic. Also note what was missing that, if put into place, would better serve your objective. Write your insights below.

This image shows a single sheet of white paper with horizontal ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. There are no margins, text, or other markings on the paper.

- 5. Request the support of family members and friends in championing you to develop your chosen traits. Who will you ask to support your reinvention efforts?

Design Your Future

Keep a Daily Journal

Accept the challenge to live deliberately each day.

1. Catch yourself in negative self-talk. Write each time you do so daily.

- 2. Distinguish what is really so from the damaging story you decided about yourself. Write down your insights.

This image shows a single sheet of white paper with horizontal blue or grey ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. There are no margins, text, or other markings on the paper.

- 3. Note whenever you demand perfection or blame yourself for things that are not your fault or beyond your control.

[illegible]

- 4. Record any assumptions that others are judging you as harshly as you judge yourself. Separate out exactly what they said from what you think they meant that has you berating yourself. Create a new, empowering interpretation that gives you the benefit of the doubt.

[illegible]

- 5. When you hear negative self-talk, ask yourself, “Is it possible that I am distorting what actually happened?”

- 6. Are you taking what others say personally? What other interpretation can you apply to these comments, assuming they are not directed at you?

This image shows a blank sheet of white paper with horizontal ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and extend across the width of the page. There are no margins, text, or other markings on the paper.

- 7. Are you comparing yourself to others unfavorably? How can you focus on your strengths instead? Acknowledge yourself for a positive trait every time you entertain a negative thought. Record your daily insights.

[illegible]

Also record your insights to the additional questions below
at the end of each day:

- 8. Did my thoughts and actions today reflect my values and commitments and contribute to building my growing self-esteem?

9. What worked about today?

[illegible]

10. What was missing that, if put into place, would support me in being the person I have declared myself to be?

[illegible]

This image shows a blank sheet of white paper with horizontal ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. There are no margins, text, or other markings on the paper.

12. How will I make tomorrow better?

This image shows a single sheet of white paper with horizontal blue ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. There are no margins, text, or other markings on the paper.

Create a Vision for Your Life

1. Write out in first person, present tense (I am....) your vision for your ideal life. Include all of the following elements:
 - Who will you be? What qualities and values will you embody? How will you look and come across to others? What will your self-image be?
 - What will you do with your life when you possess these qualities and values? How will you spend a typical day at play and a typical day at work?
 - What will you have as a result of being these qualities and doing the actions consistent with them? Where will you live? In what type of home and with whom? With what physical possessions will you surround yourself? What other things such as great friends, abundance, personal freedom, peace of mind, etc. will you have? What goals will you accomplish?
 - Who will you assist or support with these accomplishments? Are there any special people, organizations or causes that will be an important part of your life?
 - What will your relationships be like? Picture yourself interacting with friends, family, co-workers and all you meet in a way that reflects your high self-esteem and rich friendships.

Describe in detail what every aspect of your life will be like. Read your vision at least twice each day. You can't do this exercise wrong, so have fun creating your vision as a magnificent person worthy of the best that life has to offer.

Identify Your Life Purpose

1. What is your life purpose?

[illegible]

2. How will you manifest it into the world?

This image shows a blank sheet of white paper with horizontal ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. There are no margins, text, or other markings on the paper.

3. What will you put into place to live it?

Set Goals and Design an Action Plan for Your Life

1. In each of the following areas, design a plan of action geared toward elevating how you feel about yourself. What specific actions will you take and what results will you produce in each area?

- * Health and appearance
- * Wealth, finances, career, occupation
- * Relationships
- * Family
- * Personal and/or spiritual development
- * Recreation and fun

In each of the above areas,

- 1. What are your long-range goals? Select a target date of five, ten or twenty years.

- 2. What are your 1-year goals? These can either be targets to shoot for or actions that will support your objectives.

[illegible]

- 3. What are your 3-month, 6-month or 9-month milestones? Milestones are interim goals you will accomplish en route to your longer-term objectives.

The Power of a Daily Action Commitment

1. Record your daily action commitment in each of the six areas of life.

- ∞ Health and appearance
- ∞ Wealth, finances, career, occupation
- ∞ Relationships
- ∞ Family
- ∞ Personal and/or spiritual development
- ∞ Recreation and fun

[illegible]

2. Will your faithful implementation of your daily action commitment bring about the results you desire?

Put an Accountability Structure into Place

Select one or more of the following structures to support your personal reinvention.

1. Hire a coach to support your accountability and champion your progress. Many coaching organizations, including our own company, The Center for Personal Reinvention, provide expert life and business coaches to support you in deliberately designing your life and/or business. Contact us at drjrubino@email.com to set up your first coaching session.
2. Get together with like-minded friends who have committed to their own life action plans. Agree to speak weekly to answer the questions we will discuss in a few moments. Call or meet with either one friend or with a small group of friends once a week.
3. Create an email support group. Invite your accountability partners to report their progress either daily or weekly, depending upon what the group agrees.

In your reports, briefly answer the following questions:

1. What is your daily action commitment?
2. Did you do it yesterday? If not, what did you do?
3. What worked well?
4. What was missing that, if put into place, would best support tomorrow to be better?
5. What will you do next?

Acknowledge Yourself Daily

1. Each day, for the next 30 days, write a paragraph acknowledging yourself for some accomplishment.

Take Responsibility for Your Needs by Making Requests

Champion Others to Have High Self-Esteem

1. For the next 30 days, champion at least one person daily by complimenting, acknowledging, or contributing to them in some way. Write each action in your journal.

Building Self-Esteem is a Life-Long Process

Ponder and take action on at least one the following 12 Steps each day.
Record your insights in your journal.

12 Steps to Restoring Your Self-Esteem

1. Identify the source of your low self-esteem.
What negative thoughts did you buy into or interpret about yourself? What new interpretations can you create?
2. Construct a list of your negative qualities and one describing your strengths.
Develop a plan to work on the qualities you wish to manifest.
3. Identify lingering upsets from your past. Take action to complete each one and move on with your life in a positive, productive manner.
4. Decide today to forgive those who have hurt you as you likewise forgive yourself. Design an action plan to address and complete each strained relationship.
5. Design a specific dated plan to remove yourself from any abusive relationships. Inform people in your life of your commitment to reinvent yourself and notify them that you will no longer permit others to treat you without respect.
6. Practice creating new empowering interpretations daily about yourself.
7. Create a detailed newly invented declaration about who you are that addresses every aspect of your self-image.

“Through personal coaching with my coach at the Center for Personal Reinvention, I have succeeded in elevating my self-esteem and left behind years of pain and emotional baggage. I actually now feel so much happier and at peace about myself for the first time in 40 years.”

-- Sally, Los Angeles, CA

“Dr. Joe has given me back my life. I am so grateful for mustering the courage to contact him and request life coaching.”

--Paul, Spokane, WA

“Since I started a coaching relationship with Dr. Joe, my business income has nearly tripled, I am now in a relationship with the love of my life, and I see my future as filled with hope and promise! Coaching is a true gift you owe yourself.”

--Linda, Stoneham, MA

“Self-esteem is so important to building a successful network marketing business. Since I began coaching a little more than a year ago, I’ve been able to attract several powerful leaders to my business and am on track to earn a six-figure income this year. Without coaching, this would have never happened for me.
